Presentations
L. Burr provided an overview of the Committee’s work from the past triennium. He noted the Committee’s primary mandate is to advise and support the University Librarian. The Committee reports to Senate as needed on matters of policy and functioning of the library, and makes recommendations to the Senate regarding the library’s management. Typically one report is made annually. L. Burr added the Committee also functions to bring library concerns directly to Faculties. Core among these concerns is the library’s budget. L. Burr noted in past years the Committee has toured various libraries across the campus. These tours have been educational experiences for members.

S. Parker provided an overview of the library’s work. She began by noting that the libraries on the Vancouver and Okanagan campuses are related in several ways; notably, many share resources. S. Parker also noted the presence of the UBC Learning Exchange in the Downtown Eastside.

S. Parker previewed the University Librarian’s annual report to Senate with the Committee. Highlights included:

- A new Strategic Framework launched in 2019, with the following goals: advance research, learning and scholarship; engage with communities; create and deliver responsive collections; Inspire with innovative spaces and services; steward the organization.
- The shift from print to electronic resources has been helpful during COVID times but continues to pose budgetary implications as electronic resources are more expensive.
- Most of the library’s budget is spent on USD purchases, resulting in diminished buying power.
- Library expenditures remain relatively stable, with collections and salaries accounting for most of the budget.
- The library has pivoted in response to the pandemic. While most physical branches have been closed since March, the library is open and demand for library supports has increased. The library has expanded its programming, including new online offerings to support the challenges of remote teaching and learning. In September the Irving K. Barber Learning Centre began booking study space for students, faculty and staff, and the library is now adding access to single occupancy rooms.

In response to a question from J. Burnham regarding expanding the study space available and opening other physical branches, S. Parker said spaces are limited for now due to, in part, the significant amount of resources it requires to manage them. The library reviews its plan weekly.
